His Excellency seized the occasion to refer to the recently proposed Retrenchment Commission, and said that if he did not conscut to its appointment, it was not because he did not appreciate the weight of the arguments adduced in its support, but because the matter is one peculiarly within the province of the Governor and because he was not prepared been a considerable amount of sickness at the of six months he was incompetent to opportunity arises," added Sir William, honourable members will find me in a slowly recovering from his serious illness. position to act, and ready to do so.

In replying to the Governou's address both Messrs, Charen and Whitenead, while expressing appreciation of His Excellency's remarks with regard to their services in the Council, deprecated the friction set up by the use of the official majority, and Mr WHITEHEAD pointed out that several of the Ordinances which had just received amendment had in previous sessions been burriedly made law over the heads of the unofficial members. The hon, member, with engaging calmness and confidence, ventured to hope proofs of a desire to meet the wishes of the conficated. public, would secure for Hongkoug what the late Sir John Pork Hennessy secured for Mauritius, namely, a majority of unofficial members. Sir WILLIAM ROBINSON was not, however, to be drawn, and the public are left to imagine in what light he regards this latest suggestion of the member for the Chamber, Mr. WHITE HEAD'S reference to the late Sir John Pope HENNESSY was tather unfortunate. That combative Anglophobist was at perpetual war with the unofficial members during his administration here, and never thought of securing any share of representation for the Officers' Mess to night, commencing at eight British community in this Colony. It is true o'clock :--English members. Not satisfied with this reduction of their numbers, on the departure of Mr. Lowoock in 1880 he filled his place with an official by appointing Mr. J. M. PRICE. In Mauritius he was actuated by the same feeling in securing an extension the English vote by means of Creole memhim for this measure of "home rule." To Sir GEORGE BOWEN Hongkong is indebted for the small measure of representative govthat the Secretary of State sanctioned the nomination of two unofficial members, one by the Chamber of Commerce and one by the Bench of Justices respectively. We mention these facts us a simple matter of justice and because the case of Mauritius is hardly likely to help us much in Downing Street. Mr stuck to British Honduras as an example for

The time has come when the community of Hougkong may fairly claim some further extension of the principle of representation. It is possible that this might not have been very strongly urged for some time yet had not the official yoke galled so much. The official majority has been used so fre quently and with such effect during the past two or three years that the sense of their impotence has been brought home to the unofficial members in irritating iteration producing natural screness and setting up a sort of division where harmony only should exist. The care for this state of things lies merca on the 2nd alt. on the question of postal in the direction indicated by Mr. WEITE-READ. There exist precedents for what he follow-subjects in the colonies almost quantasks without going to Mauritius, the circumstances of which island are very different, to those ruling here. That of British Honluras is quite sufficient for our purpose now, the postal authorities in carrying letters There had been friction in that colony over the question of finance, all the unofficial members had resigned, and their places were filled by officials. A new Governor was appointed, and he set to work to heal the General in the colonies, and all of them received now ample provision in the new building for pressions founded on incomplete knowledge of estrem; it will always ramind me of the many ill nove had reached them, both averring that breach. The Legislative Council was reconstituted, six unofficial and five official members being appointed. Surely a similar concession might be made here, by the appoint. ment of seven unofficial members to the six official members, and one of the latter might give place to the General in command of the Troops, who certainly ought to have a seal 117 in the Legislative Council as an independ. ent member. The Officer in Command of the Proops at Singapore has always had a seat in the Straits Legislative Council, and in his Colony, where the Garrison is much larger, his exclusion is an incomprehensible anomaly. There would be no reason to fear any startling innovations as the outcome of this concession of an unofficial majority. Common sense would rule the majority of the Council, and there would be no likelihood of any revolu. following telegram :tionary measures being passed, while in matters of Imperial policy the Governor could if necessary use his casting vote. An Anglo-Chinese Dectionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong. For comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new. words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are here given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature. Both the Court and Pauti pronunciations are given the accents being carefully marked on the best displays the success of an attempt to make the from the West. Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of terized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work the Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English meetion with the places, their History and Topoand Chinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters.
